Dear participants
of the DTC workshops

Surgical care is constantly improving, even in low and middle income countries. Modern technology is finding its way, but often only in the capitals. The number of doctors, medical officers and nursing staff is also increasing. They sometimes just don't want to work in rural areas because training and infrastructure seems insufficient there.

At this year's DTC conference, we want to discuss whether there are ways out, and if so, which ones.

The conference is traditionally introduced by various workshops, which can be attended by students and young doctors in stations.

And the evenings also traditionally give enough space and opportunity to get to know each other and get together.

We look forward to the hours together.
